

PREMIER GLASS NECK FRETLESS GUITARIST

NED EVETT

Live In Concert:
Friday, June 27th

8PM

$10 general admission
$8 students

Evett is one of the world's foremost fretless guitarists, and the sumptuous sounds he seduces from his instrument's strings fuse rock and pop with jazz, blues and soul. The lack of any interposing frets (the series of metal ridges set across a traditional guitar's fingerboard) frees Evett to play every note you can conceive of and all the ones in between. The net result, according to CreativeMusicWorks.org, is "like listening to a waterfall on fire."

Evett and his music are gathering increasing acclaim. Grammy nominated guitar-virtuoso Joe Satriani says, "Ned Evett plays a mirrored glass fingerboard in a completely new and exciting way." And Built To Spill frontman Doug Martsch, with whom Evett plays and records in a project called "Boise Cover Band," describes him as a "virtuoso hotshot guitar player." "He's kind of a pioneer fretless guitar player," Martsch says. "He's amazing, beautiful."

Fingerstyle Guitar magazine concurs, writing that "Ned Evett will make you rethink the plucked-string instrument," and UnderdogMusic.net advises, "Hear Ned play before you die - it should be the 11th Commandment." Seattle Stranger, a weekly entertainment newspaper, writes that "Evett's technique on the fretless guitar comes praised from every quarter, especially his performance of what are described as 'unearthly, theremin-like glissandos that create whole new landscapes of sonic possibilities.'"
